Dear Mr Cadwalader,

Sometime ago, the "Trustees of the "Cadwalader Gallery" gave to Princeton College a set of Photographs of the most valuable works of art in their collection, and to have a Photograph made, I call, remember right, the Trustees Library to this Library so that a set of Photographs may be accessible to Students and others who may desire to see them. Should you have any Photographs of the Cadwalader Pictures, I will be much obliged if you will send me one of each, and I will have it placed in the Library with the others. Please send bill for same, and oblige,

COR COORAN GALLERY OF ART
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Return, if not called for in 5 days.

It would certainly be to me a sincere gratification that some work of mine might be considered worthy of place in the "Corcoran Gallery", the more, if I could feel assured of creditable representation thereby. Such, so far as I might be allowed judgment, I had completed, with the utmost care and study - and intended sending to the Cent^{l} Exhibition - and should have done so, but for complications, in getting it timely to Phil^{a} - The subject of it is "The Service of Mass on sundays - for the Harvesters of the Roman Campagna" proof from an etching that I have made from it I enclose -

It is on canvas 5 feet 7 inches by 1 f^{t} 10 inches - and in a very suitable carved and gilt frame - It was executed to an open order - and remains at my disposal only in consequence of unanticipated financial embarrassments. I have not repeated it, nor will I ever attempt to do so. The price I should have received for it was $1000 - but under existing circumstances - I would willingly at present accept $800.

You doubtless know of the changes that have come upon Old Rome since you were here, but it would be difficult to imagine how subverting they prove of all its former attractions and associations, in almost every sense

Please allow me to repeat apology for this intrusion - and believe me - Dear Sir

Most respectfully
Yours very truly
John L. Chapman.

Dear Sir.

Hoping to retain favorable friendly remembrance by you — I take the liberty of directly, rather than intermediately, addressing you.

I have been only very recently aware that some time since, a very kind friend Dr. J. G. Richardson of New-Orleans, had as he informed me, advanced overtures, in my behalf, to the trustees of the "Corcoran Gallery" for purchase of a life-size full-length portrait of Col. Crockett belonging to, and executed by me in Wash. City in 1834

That the proposition was not favorably considered gave neither surprise or disappointment — or in truth regret — for obvious reasons, that as a work of art it presents no just claims to place in such a collection — whatever value it may have being altogether associated with its subject, and the time and circumstances of its execution. I shall be quite satisfied to succeed, as I hope to, in securing permanent place for it in the legislative Hall at Austin, where it has been for four years past

Respectfully Yours

Committee on Centennial of the I.O.B.B. for whom I made the colossal group Religious Liberty have not succeeded in collecting the monies to pay for the same, that no disposition can be made of the group. note after the Convention of the order has been held in 1899. I delivered your message to them and Mr Sanger the Chairman begs me to express their sincere thanks for the same, and whenever they feel authorized to do so, will freely consult with you as to its destination, and avail themselves of your valued influence.

This inability on the part of the committee to fulfil their obligations to me, places me in much difficulty, inasmuch as the German Consul in Rome, and some noble men here, advanced a greater part of the means for carrying on and completing the work, and whilst I shall only have cleared a mere pittance when the whole sum of $20,000 has been paid. I have so far only received $500 from the Committee, & the rest from the others above named. I was half way under the impression when I came to New York that the Committee here had made some arrangements for liquidating the debt, and thought that I could go on to Rome and complete my sketch

Honored Sir -

It is with much pleasure that I have heard of your continued improve ment in health and I hope that my lines may find you quite recovered - My object in writing to you dear Sir is a twofold one - firstly to thank you for your kindly reception, and the pleasure and gratification that your munificence afforded me in Washington, whilst enjoy ing the treasures in your Art Gallery, and secondly to inform you that at the private, and public buildings in Berlin, and it would be a great pleasure to me, to be able to render, as far as my ability goes, your building worthy of the treasures it contains.

I believe that for durability, ornament & cheapness, that 2nd quality Carrara marble would be advisable.

If not asking too much, most honored Sir, I would at all events be very glad to receive a few lines from you, and do assure you that should there be no wish to carry on these works at present, I do not by my writing desire to create one. I simply feel at this time that the "mills of the gods are grinding slowly" and I would not be doing myself and my art justice, if I did not write to you, I were to deprive myself of an opportunity to do work and exercise my skill in a direction most natural and congenial to me — hence relying upon your most favourable construction I greet you most heartily, with kindest regards to Mrs. Ladies, Miss Jones & Mrs.

Corcoran & have the honour to remain

Gentlemen

I have in my possession a beautiful painting called the Parting of Siegfried and Chriemhild. The subject is taken the Fall of the Nibelungs or the Book of Chriemhild The description of the painting is found in the Poem, translated by William Hanson Lettson verse 940 to 953. It is an original painting by Heydeck of Königsberg bought from the Royal Academy of Berlin, and is a gem, and never wearies of seeing and studying it

If you will send some one here to see the painting, they will agree it is all it is represented to be.

It is too large and too fine for any private gallery, it should be owned by a public gallery as an art study.

I have seen all the paintings of the loan exhibition in New York, also the paintings in the Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia, nearly all the public galleries in New York and many of the private ones. I have also visited a great many of the picture galleries in Europe, both public and private. This painting is as beautiful as any I have seen.

This morning we have concluded to sell our home, and do not wish to take the large painting with us. We have also some fine smaller paintings which we shall keep

The Falls of Terni by Bellerman an original.

View of Amsterdam by Hermann Original

Christ before the Temple by Dietrich Orig

The Rendezvous by Frank Hovland Orig
